Breastfeeding, Chestfeeding and HIV: Supporting Informed Choices

Submitted on May 23, 2024

Image

Breast/chestfeeding is considered the healthiest infant-feeding option for the general population. The Well Project is committed to ensuring that women and other parents living with HIV have access to the information, support, and tools necessary to make informed infant-feeding decisions.

We affirm the autonomy of women and parents living with HIV; their fundamental right to make informed, uncoerced infant-feeding choices; and the need to trust that they will make the best decisions for themselves and their families when equipped with information, resources, and support.

The Issue

Breastfeeding while taking HIV drugs is the standard of care for women and other parents living with HIV in resource-limited areas of the world. It has been shown to increase survival and well-being of their babies, and the risk of HIV transmission with this method is extremely low. However, in high-resource settings like the United States and Canada, general HIV and public health guidelines have historically discouraged breastfeeding among women living with HIV.

A significant change occurred in early 2023 when the US Perinatal HIV Clinical Guidelines – which inform healthcare providers in their engagements specifically related to pregnancy, infant care, and HIV – were rigorously updated to reflect current knowledge about HIV transmission through breast milk; discuss benefits of breast/chestfeeding; and encourage informed, shared infant-feeding decision-making for women and other birthing parents living with HIV.

Over the past several years, The Well Project has created and curated many articles, events, and other resources to provide access to a range of information, based on research findings and expert experience, that can support parents living with HIV in their infant-feeding decision making. Below is a list of our resources on this topic, which we will continue to add to as they are developed. We recognize and are responding to the need for programming to advance research, policy, and educational resources for women and other parents living with HIV and the providers, professionals, and others who care for them.

CONOZCA LOS HECHOS
La lactancia materna/dar el pecho y el VIH
www.thewellproject.org

¿Sabía que?
Si una mujer viviendo con VIH tiene una CARGA VIRAL INDETECTABLE, continúa la probabilidad de transmitir el VIH a través de la lactancia ES DE MENOS DEL 1%.
En EE. UU. y en otros países de altos recursos, las directrices recomiendan que los proveedores apoyen la decisión de los padres de amamantar a sus hijos.
REDESAN CONSTRUIR LA IGUALDAD, LA ÉTICA Y LA EDUCACIÓN SOBRE LA LACTANCIA Y EL VIH: desde con el apoyo de una comunidad de la Sociedad de Acción Positiva para las Mujeres de VIH Positivas.

¿Cómo pueden los padres que viven con VIH ayudar a mantener a sus bebés VIH negativos mientras los amamantan?
 Tener la carga viral para el VIH tan baja como sea posible.
 Mantener una carga viral para el VIH tan baja como sea posible.
 Mantener un peso con cuidado.
 Usar un método de lactancia seguro.
 Profesionales de la salud que ayudan a reducir el riesgo de transmisión.
 Apoyo emocional y apoyo.

Cuando los padres que viven con VIH deciden la lactancia materna/dar el pecho, ¡el apoyo es fundamental!
 Proveedores.
 Compañeros.
 Profesionales de la salud mental.
 Espacios de lactancia.
 Miembros de la familia.
 Compañerismo/compañías.

“Lo único que quería era alimentar a mi bebé. No buscaba aprobación, sólo necesitaba apoyo.”
—DARRA COYNE

“El apoyo de mi médico de enfermedades infecciosas y de mi pareja es lo que me permitió tener éxito en la lactancia de mis dos hijos.”
—HEATHER O’CONNOR

“Como mujer que nació con VIH, puedo decirles lo vital que es empoderar a las mujeres viviendo con VIH para que se sientan libres de tener hijos y alimentarlos como mejor les parezca.”
—PATRICIA DAVIS

EL LENGUAJE IMPORTA:
En The Well Project utilizamos “decisiones informadas” y “amamantar/dar pecho”. The Well Project se centra en las mujeres cis y trans que viven con VIH y son vulnerables a él, y nos enfocamos por ser inclusivos con las hembras trans, las personas no binarias y todas las demás personas viviendo con VIH que desean explorar estas opciones.

¡Visite The Well Project para acceder a hojas informativas basadas en la evidencia y otros programas educativos: apoyo comunitario, abogacía y desarrollo de liderazgo, participación colaborativa e investigaciones centradas en la mujer.
