About BEEEBAH

Welcome to BEEEBAH (Building Equity, Ethics, and Education on Breastfeeding and HIV)! This comprehensive, multi-tiered project expands upon The Well Project's efforts to increase knowledge and expand access to information around breast/chestfeeding* and HIV. Through educational resource creation, leadership development, and collaborative efforts, BEEEBAH strives to ensure that women living with HIV can experience their fundamental right to make informed, supported, uncoerced infant-feeding decisions.

BEEEBAH addresses a number of key programmatic goals identified in 2020's Expert Consensus Statement on Breastfeeding* and HIV in the United States and Canada. Launched in December 2021, the program is part of our endeavors to address the lack of women-specific information and representation across all areas of HIV prevention, care, research, and policy.

View a compilation of all The Well Project's work on breast/chestfeeding and HIV since 2018

We add new content to this page regularly as programs are rolled out – so please check back often for new educational and multi-media programs that we hope you will share widely! If you are interested in joining the HIV and Infant feeding listserv for updates, please email The Well Project's editorial director Olivia Ford.

News and Perspectives

Patient Perspective by Ciarra Covin Published in the Journal HIV Research and Clinical Practice

Read a journal article by The Well Project's Ciarra "Ci Ci" Covin titled "Parenting with HIV: a Patient's View on Updated Infant Feeding Guidelines in the US," about the experience of and updated guidance around breast/chestfeeding.

The Well Project Welcomes Pediatric Guideline Updates on Infant Feeding and HIV in the US

Updated infant feeding guidance from the premier US pediatric provider group stresses a "family-centered, nonjudgmental" approach to support parents living with HIV who want to breast/chestfeed and are taking effective HIV treatment.

The Well Project at the 2023 Motown Experience: Birth & Breastfeeding Conference

"This conference was like a breath of fresh air and very much needed. It gave me confidence to accept my role as an advocate for Black maternal and infant health, bridged a gap to Black birthing and breastfeeding community that I had previously counted myself out of, and sparked lightbulbs of researchers and providers as they return to their work."

Infant Feeding: How Updated Guidelines Help Parents Living with HIV \(Positively Aware\)

Support for parents living with HIV in the US has improved with updated federal guidance affirming informed, shared infant-feeding decision-making. The Well Project's Olivia G. Ford writes for Positively Aware about five key entry points to the new HIV and infant feeding guidelines.

The Well Project Applauds Updates to Perinatal HIV Clinical Guidelines around Breast/Chestfeeding for Women and Other Birthing Parents Living with HIV

As a result of years of advocacy by women living with HIV, providers, and others – including The Well Project – updates to the US Perinatal HIV Clinical Guidelines on January 31, 2023, assert the need for increased support from providers for parents' infant-feeding choices. The guideline updates state the likelihood of transmission if the birthing parent has an undetectable viral load and is taking HIV drugs (less than 1 percent); provide more detailed information on the potential benefits of breast/chestfeeding; and offer guidance for providers counseling birthing parents around their infant-feeding options.

Expert Conversations

Reproductive Life with HIV: Action Steps from Pregnancy Planning to Infant Feeding – WATCH! 2.0

You may already be aware of the fact that people living with HIV can have safe, healthy pregnancies and thriving babies who remain HIV-negative. In the fifth session of the WATCH! 2.0 series, we dig deeper into how we got to this point, what conception, pregnancy, birth, and the postpartum period can look like for parents living with HIV, and how advocacy for yourself and others can play a role.

Leadership Exchange LIVE: BEEEEBAH Edition features live, interactive conversations between thoughtleaders on infant feeding and HIV exploring one another's work, activism, and personal experiences.

Updates to the Perinatal HIV Clinical Guidelines!

The fourth session featured Ciarra "Ci Ci" Covin (The Well Project) and Lealah Pollock, MD, MS (University of California, San Francisco). Watch this powerful discussion of recent updates to the Perinatal HIV Clinical Guidelines asserting the need for shared decision-making between providers and parents living with HIV and increased support from providers for parents' infant-feeding choices. This is big news!

Breastfeeding, HIV, and Criminalization: Legal Considerations from a US Attorney

The third session of our Leadership Exchange LIVE: BEEEEBAH edition features Ciarra "Ci Ci" Covin (The Well Project) and Catherine Hanssens (The Center for HIV Law and Policy). Ci Ci relates her personal experiences as a woman living with HIV, new parent, and advocate; Catherine shares insights from her work as an attorney who has been active in HIV legal and policy issues since 1984.

The Big Picture: Health Implications and Bioethical Considerations of Breastfeeding and HIV

For our second session of Leadership Exchange LIVE: BEEEEBAH Edition, The Well Project's Ciarra "Ci Ci" Covin was joined by Marielle Gross, MD, MBE, an OB/GYN and bioethicist at the University of Pittsburgh and Johns Hopkins. Ci Ci and Marielle have shared a stage to talk about breast/chestfeeding and HIV before; the two reconnected to discuss race, maternal health, and ethics around infant feeding and HIV - including supporting parents living with HIV to engage in shared, informed infant feeding decision-making.

Breastfeeding and HIV: Viewpoints from an Adult and Pediatric Provider

In the inaugural session of Leadership Exchange LIVE: BEEEEBAH Edition, The Well Project's Ciarra "Ci Ci" Covin sat down with pediatric and adult infectious disease physician Allison Agwu, MD, ScM, of Johns Hopkins. Covin related her personal experiences as a woman living with HIV, new parent, and advocate; Agwu shared insights from her work caring for women living with HIV across the lifespan (from pediatrics to adults), including women who choose to breastfeed.

The HIV and Infant Feeding Guidelines at Six Months: Perspectives from National Leaders

For the second year in a row, The Well Project and the National Clinician Consultation Center co-hosted the Annual Perinatal HIV Roundtable. Esteemed panelists, in conversation with one another, discussed how their organizations plan to adjust to, address, and implement the new HIV and infant feeding guidance.

Perinatal HIV Roundtable 2022 - Updates in Breast/Chestfeeding: Parent Perspectives and Evolving Practice

Copresented by The Well Project and the National Perinatal HIV Hotline, this annual roundtable geared for providers welcomed anyone with an interest in the topic to the 2022 event. The panel discussion featured medical and legal professionals engaged with supporting parents living with HIV in their infant-feeding journeys, in paired conversation with Black women advocates living with HIV who have navigated those journeys.

Breast/Chestfeeding and HIV in the US: A Listening Session with National Advocates

This webinar brought together women leaders from US-based organizations to provide updates about community-driven efforts underway to expand knowledge around breast/chestfeeding with HIV, promote provider support for parents living with HIV, change policies to reflect current evidence – and how others can get involved. Updates to the HIV and Infant Feeding Guidelines in the US

The January 2023 updates to the US Department of Health and Human Services' HIV and infant feeding guidelines assert the need for shared decision-making and increased support from providers around parents' infant-feeding choices. The American Academy of Pediatrics followed in May 2024, releasing similarly updated guidance. Share, download, or print this two-sided postcard highlighting key updates in both sets of guidelines.

The postcard is divided into two main sections. The top section, titled "Updates to the HIV and Infant Feeding Guidelines in the US", features the logos of "thewellproject" and the US Department of Health and Human Services. It contains text about the January 2023 updates from HHS and the May 2024 updates from the AAP, both emphasizing shared decision-making and a family-centered approach. A quote from Clara "Cl G" Cavin, a senior manager at The Well Project, is included. The bottom section, titled "Key updates in the guidelines include:", lists seven bullet points: guidance on counseling parents, clearer transmission rates, detailed health benefits of breastfeeding, caution against CPS engagement, details on care management, equity considerations, and guidance for transgender and gender-diverse people. A quote from Natalia Rakhomina, MD, is also present. Both sections include a "SCAN QR CODE" button and a QR code to access the full guidelines.

Updates to the HIV and Infant Feeding Guidelines in the US

In January 2023, the US Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) issued sweeping updates to the "Infant Feeding" section of their Perinatal HIV Clinical Guidelines. The updates, which the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention also supports, assert the need for shared decision-making and increased support from providers around parents' infant-feeding choices.

The American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) followed HHS in May 2024, releasing similarly updated guidance stressing a "family-centered, nonjudgmental, harm reduction" approach to infant-feeding discussions.

These modifications represent a significant accomplishment for advocates, including The Well Project, who have been working for years on various levels to affect these changes. The Well Project is especially excited that both sets of guidelines discourage engagement with Child Protective Services (CPS) or similar agencies in response to the infant-feeding intentions of women and other parents living with HIV.

Key updates in the guidelines include:

- Guidance to counsel birthing parents living with HIV around their infant-feeding options replaces previous recommendations against breastfeeding
- Clearer guidance on transmission rates if the birthing parent has an undetectable viral load and is taking HIV medications (less than 1 percent)
- Detailed information on the potential health benefits of breast/chestfeeding
- Caution to not engage Child Protective Services in response to infant-feeding decisions
- Details guiding care management to reduce HIV transmission risk if a parent decides to breast/chestfeed
- Equity considerations in caring for Black families and other families of color who are unduly affected by HIV, social determinants of health, and conditions that may be alleviated by breast/chestfeeding
- Guidance for transgender and gender-diverse people who desire to breast/chestfeed (HHS only)

Actualizaciones de las guías sobre el VIH y la alimentación infantil en EE.UU.

Las actualizaciones de enero de 2023 de las guías sobre el VIH y la alimentación infantil del Departamento de Salud y Servicios Humanos de EE.UU. afirman la necesidad de una toma de decisiones compartida y de un mayor apoyo por parte de los proveedores en torno a las opciones de alimentación infantil de padres. La Academia Estadounidense de Pediatría le siguió en mayo de 2024, publicando unas directrices actualizadas similares. Comparta, descargue o imprima esta postal de doble cara en la que se hace hincapié en las actualizaciones clave de ambos conjuntos de directrices.

Actualizaciones en las Guías de Alimentación Infantil en EE.UU.

En enero de 2023, el Departamento de Salud y Servicios Humanos de EE.UU. (HHS) publicó unas actualizaciones radicales de la sección "Alimentación infantil" de sus guías clínicas perinatales sobre el VIH. Las actualizaciones, que también apoyan los Centros para el Control y la Prevención de Enfermedades de EE.UU., afirman la necesidad de una toma de decisiones compartida y un mayor apoyo de los proveedores en torno a las opciones de alimentación infantil para padres.

La Academia Americana de Pediatría (AAP) siguió los pasos del HHS en mayo de 2024, publicando recomendaciones igualmente actualizadas que hacen hincapié en un enfoque "centrado en la familia, sin prejuicios y de reducción de daños" en conversaciones sobre la alimentación del lactante.

Estas modificaciones representan un logro importante para los defensores, incluido The Well Project, que llevan años trabajando a diversos niveles para conseguir estos cambios. The Well Project está especialmente entusiasmado por el hecho de que ambos conjuntos de directrices desaconsejan la intervención de los Servicios de Protección de Menores ("CPIS", por sus siglas en inglés) e agencias similares en respuesta a las intenciones de amamantar a los bebés de las mujeres y otros padres que viven con VIH.

“Ver que los casos de quienes utilizan sus VIH han sido capaces de impulsar un cambio a este nivel es inspirador. Ahora se siente como si estuvieramos un paso más cerca de desestigmatizar la lactancia/dar el pecho entre los padres que viven con VIH, ya que las directrices recomiendan específicamente no llamar a CPIS.”
Clara "C" Cavin, directora de programación comunitaria de The Well Project y mujer viviendo con VIH que amamantó a su hijo menor

Las actualizaciones clave de las directrices incluyen:

- Orientación para asesorar a los padres que dan a luz y viven con VIH sobre sus opciones de alimentación infantil, que sustituye a las anteriores recomendaciones contra la lactancia
- Una orientación más clara sobre las tasas de transmisión si la persona que da a luz tiene una carga viral indetectable y está tomando medicamentos para el VIH (menos del 1%).
- Información detallada sobre los posibles beneficios para la salud asociados a la lactancia/dar el pecho
- Precaución de no recurrir a los Servicios de Protección de Menores en respuesta a las decisiones sobre alimentación infantil
- Detalles que orientan la gestión de los cuidados para reducir el riesgo de transmisión del VIH si uno de los padres decide amamantar/ dar el pecho
- Consideraciones de equidad en la atención de familias negras y otras familias de color que se ven indebidamente afectadas por el VIH, los determinantes sociales de la salud y las afecciones que pueden aliviarse con la lactancia/dar el pecho.
- Orientación para personas transgénero y con diversidad de género que desean amamantar/dar el pecho (sólo HHS)

“Como pediatra...celebro la nueva revisión de las guías de alimentación infantil del HHS para proveedores que atienden a personas viviendo con VIH...Esta actualización tan necesaria utiliza las pruebas científicas disponibles para alentar por una toma de decisiones compartida entre el proveedor y el paciente y un enfoque centrado en el paciente, lo que tiene el potencial de reducir el estigma asociado al VIH y mejorar la calidad de vida entre las personas viviendo con VIH.”
